Sydney's Central Coast is a region just over an hour north of Sydney CBD. It is connected to the city by rail, the M1 Pacific Motorway and the soon to be completed North Connex connecting the area with Western Sydney. It forms part of the Sydney Greater Metropolitan Area which has a population of some 3.5 million people.

The local working population is 104,734 of which approximately 30% commute into the City each day for work. Most of these commuters would prefer to work locally.

The Central Coast has a resident population of 337,000 people and will grow to over 400,000 in the next 25 years.

Gosford is the Capital City of the Central Coast and is presently seeing unprecedented investment. The NSW Government has made a commitment to the growth of the region and is investing almost a billion dollars in support of that growth while at the same time private investors have invested a similar amount with plans to spend more.

Central Coast Council administers the Local Government Area which covers 168,042 hectares. While most people live along the coastal fringe and around the waterways the western area of the region which comprises some 70% supports a strong agricultural industry and extensive national parks.

Best known for its relaxed lifestyle the Central Coast is embarking on a new era that will see a resurgence of investment as property developers and businesses looking to escape the congestion of Sydney create exciting new opportunities for those wishing to live and work within the region.

In 2016 the NSW State Government introduced the Central Coast Regional Plan, a 20 year strategy that will see the population grow by more than 75,500 people, create another 24,674 jobs and build 41,500 more dwellings.

Top reasons to relocate or expand on the Central Coast

Low business costs in respect of land, occupancy, labour costs and productivity

A large, adaptable and enthusiastic skilled and unskilled workforce

Fast access to Australia's major markets and export ports

Well-developed infrastructure including connection to the National Broadband Network throughout the whole region

An ideal family lifestyle with excellent school and health facilities in a pristine environment unattainable in the city or comparable areas

60 minutes to Sydney – 80 minutes to Sydney International Airport

Key Sectors

Manufacturing and food processing

The manufacturing sector accounts for a diverse range of products from small, medium and large companies operating throughout the region and employs around 8,500 people. Over fifty food manufacturing and processing companies, including well known international brands, are located in the region.

Distribution, Transport and Logistics

The Central Coast is an excellent location for logistics operations being close to Port Botany and Sydney International Airport as well as being centrally located within about two hours driving time, north and south, of a population of around 5.1 million people.

Information and Communications Technology

A growing number of ICT companies are establishing in the region with the result that an ICT Cluster is being seen as the genesis for a new industry taking advantage of being connected throughout by the national broadband network.

Contact Centres

With occupancy costs much lower than in capital cities and an extensive skilled workforce with staff turnover among the lowest in NSW, the Central Coast offers an ideal environment for Call Centres.

Aged Care and Retirement Living

A preferred retirement destination for seniors has created a growing demand for retirement accommodation and, in particular, for resident-funded, self-care retirement villages.

Lifestyle – A better choice of living

The Central Coast offers a perfect mix of town and country life for those who make it their home. A superbly relaxed lifestyle in a magnificent, natural, pollution-free environment is available to all, with the benefits of city living never far away.

Families are offered a safe and secure environment with the opportunity to live life to the full. It is the reason so many people choose to live in the region.

Areas of particular benefit are:

Residential property – the Central Coast offers the opportunity to acquire a quality residential property at values substantially lower than in Sydney Metropolitan areas.

Schooling – public and private schools provide a high standard of primary and secondary education. Opportunities for tertiary learning are extensive. The University of Newcastle has a Campus on the Central Coast as does TAFE NSW. In addition universities in the Sydney city areas are easily accessed.

Health – a healthy, pollution-free environment with hospital and medical facilities comparable with those in major cities.

The Central Coast is an hour north of Sydney CBD and is part of the Greater Sydney Metropolitan Area although it is still considered a region in its own right. It is located halfway between Sydney and Newcastle (the largest regional city in NSW) putting it at the centre of a population of around six million people.

The Central Coast encompasses a total area of 1,680 square kilometres including more than 80 kilometres of coastline. Around 70% of this area comprises national parks, state forest, bushland, agricultural land and waterways.

The region is governed by the Central Coast Council which was established in 2016 following the amalgamation of Gosford and Wyong Councils. Representation on Council is through 15 elected councillors representing five Wards.

Gosford City is the capital of the region and is seeing unprecedented growth and investment from government and the private sector.

The population of the region in 2016 was 327,736 of which 21% are over the age of 65. About 30% of the working population commute to work in Sydney. Of those who live and work within the region the largest employing sector is Health Care and Assistance followed by Education and Training, Retail, Construction and Manufacturing.

In 2016/17 the region generated Output of $23.47 billion resulting in Gross Regional Product of $13.7 billion which represented 2.5% of New South Wales. There were 22,480 registered local businesses.

In 2016 the NSW Government introduced the Central Coast Regional Plan 2036 that will see the population grow by 75,500 more people in 20 years, create 24,674 jobs and see 41,500 more dwellings.

The Central Coast is undergoing a resurgence of investment as property developers and businesses take advantage of the opportunities led by strong government infrastructure development.

Message from the Parliamentary Secretary for the Central Coast

With its prime location between Sydney and Newcastle, easy transport links, and a mobile, skilled workforce the Central Coast is an excellent choice for an investor to start or expand their business.

The 2018/19 Budget allocated $168 million for road upgrades across the Central Coast and $47 million towards the new Gosford and redeveloped Wyong Hospitals. The $2.3 billion Intercity Fleet is due to rollout in 2019. This includes the $300 million Intercity Fleet Maintenance Facility at Kangy Angy. It is anticipated there will be 200 operational jobs at this site.

As part of the Budget the payroll tax threshold will be progressively lifted. From 1st July this year it rose to $850,000 from $750,000. It will rise to $900,000 in 2019-20, $950,000 in 2020-21 and $1 million in 2021-22. I acknowledge the continued role and sustained advocacy of the Central Coast Business

Chamber in advocating for payroll tax reform. Nearly 40,000 NSW businesses will save up to $5,450 each in 2018-19 and up to $13,625 per business in 2021-22.

$52 million was committed in May for infrastructure and public space upgrades as part of Gosford CBD revitalisation. The plans, developed in consultation with the NSW Government Architect are currently on exhibition. After several stop-start attempts over the years that have fatigued Gosford and Central Coast residents, I can assure the community that tangible progress is underway.

Throughout 2018 I have visited major employers on the Central Coast to understand their issues, and understand what the NSW Liberal National Government can do better. I look forward to continuing these visits to assist our Government drive greater business investment and job creation on the Central Coast.

Parliamentary Secretary for the Hunter and Central Coast*

Who is investing in the region?

The Central Coast and in particular Gosford City is experiencing an unprecedented investment boom as investors, property developers and businesses looking to relocate from Sydney see the benefits that the region has to offer in terms of growth and security. At the same time the NSW Government is spending over a billion dollars on infrastructure projects in the region.

While much of this investment was initiated in the few years prior to the formation of the new Central Coast

Council in 2015 a renewed confidence in the region has sprung from policies of the NSW State Government following the introduction of the Central Coast Growth Plan 2036 and the Minister for Planning announcing a plan for the Revitalisation of Gosford CBD that will transform it into the Regional City of the Central Coast.

At the end of August 2018 the number of cranes in the Gosford City precinct was 15 – a sight that has never been seen before.

near Gosford. Saddles Restaurant and Bakehouse and adjacent wholesale nursery is built on a 10 hectare site and represents an investment of more than $5 million. In just a few months this property has established itself as an exceptional dining destination.

He owns Pretty Beach House overlooking the entrance to Brisbane Water regarded by Conde Nast as one of Australia's most exclusive and luxurious accommodation locations.

“I can see the Central Coast becoming the most desirable place to live in Australia because it will offer the perfect work/life blend. It is becoming a lot more cosmopolitan as more people have made it their home. There's a lot of nice things to do here, good restaurants, great beaches, natural parks and the schools are fantastic. What is more, we are just one hour from Sydney with countless entertainment and leisure opportunities for us to enjoy.

That is why I live here and why I chose to invest over half a billion dollars in residential property developments in Gosford and locate my Gosford Classic Car Museum and international auto trading business at West Gosford. The Central Coast Regional Plan 2036 was launched in October 2016 by the NSW Minister for Planning.

The Regional Plan is a whole-of-Government 20-year blueprint to deliver environmentally sustainable prosperity, jobs, housing, infrastructure, connected communities and to realise the full potential of urban centres on the Central Coast.

The Regional Plan’s aims are:

- Focus on two separate growth corridors within the region:
 - Somersby – Erina in the south (including Gosford as the Regional Capital)
 - Warnervale – Tuggerah in the north (including Warnervale Town Centre)
- Population growth – increase by 75,500 people to 415,000
- Number of dwellings – increase by 41,500 dwellings to 199,150
- Total jobs – increase by 24,674 to 141,404

The Regional Plan has identified Gosford City on Brisbane Water as a Regional City and is focused on its revitalisation (see Page 17).

The NSW Government is committed to driving the continued implementation of the Regional Plan to realise and harness the region’s enormous potential.

Its efforts are spearheaded by the Coordinator General for the Central Coast, a senior Minister-appointed strategic role that is unique for a NSW region. The Coordinator General holds authority for all statutory planning matters on the Central Coast which affords the region a planning autonomy unrivalled by any in the State.

The Regional Plan is being implemented via two-year Implementation Plans that set out tasks, governance, responsibilities and timing for delivery. Implementation Plan 2018-2020 is the second instalment and sets out 110 Regional Plan actions grouped into the following 7 focus areas:

1. Promote economic growth, jobs and development in key centres.
2. Land Use Needs West of the M1 Pacific Motorway
3. Housing and Employment Land Supply
4. Darkinjung Local Aboriginal Land Council Lands and Delivery Framework
5. Revitalising Gosford City Centre
6. Support Central Coast Council to deliver the Regional Plan priorities.
7. Strategic Environmental Program.

“The time for Gosford to shine is finally here. I and my Central Coast-based team at the Department of Planning and Environment, are leading the coordination to ensure Gosford becomes the vibrant, thriving capital this region deserves and needs. We are working in close collaboration with Michael Cassel and his team at the Hunter Central Coast Development Corporation, Central Coast Council, other Government agencies, stakeholders and the community to implement a program of design-led delivery to revitalise Gosford City Centre. It’s a bold vision but we are leaving no stone unturned bringing it to realisation to ensure Gosford finally fulfils its destiny as a regional capital and a great place to live, work, visit and do business for generations to come.”

The revitalisation of Gosford City Centre as the vibrant, liveable capital of a healthy, prosperous and connected Central Coast, is a key Ministerial priority of the Central Coast Regional Plan 2036.

The city is experiencing a boom in commercial, residential and services development, with no less than 15 cranes dominating the skyline at the time of publication.

The NSW Department of Planning and Environment is coordinating delivery of Gosford City’s revitalisation under the leadership of Coordinator General for the Central Coast Lee Shearer.

In August 2017 the Department commissioned the NSW Government Architect to develop a design-led Urban Design Implementation Framework (UDIF) to revitalise Gosford City≈Centre.

Following a comprehensive consultation and a series of workshops with stakeholders, the Government Architect articulated the revitalisation vision via three ‘place-based’ reports that each focus on one of three linked areas of the city centre:

- Civic Heart – The upgrade of Kibble Park and the surrounding city centre
- City North – Connecting the greatly expanded Gosford Hospital to Mann Street and the city across the rail corridor and upgrading Gosford train station
- City South – Connecting the city to the waterfront parklands in addition to a series of upgrades to those parklands.

Following a public consultation process the Government Architect has taken the public comments and submissions into consideration in the development of a finalised UDIF that was released in September 2018.

New statutory planning controls

In mid-2018 the NSW Government released a suite of proposed new statutory planning controls to enable streamlined, flexible and efficient development.

The controls give effect to the Government Architect’s recommendations that are framed to achieve design excellence.

The new controls for Gosford City Centre comprise:

- A State Environment Planning Policy (SEPP)
- A Development Control Plan
- A Special Infrastructure Contribution (SIC).

The SIC will enable the Department of Planning and Environment to collect contributions for revitalisation of infrastructure that supports growth as the revitalisation program continues to roll out.

Following public exhibition and consultation, the new planning framework was enacted in October 2018.

Earlier, In late May 2018, NSW Minister for Planning Anthony Roberts announced an investment of $52m in funding for infrastructure and public space in Gosford City Centre.

The funding will see well overdue work being done to upgrade water and sewer infrastructure, public domain and public amenity, which will facilitate and attract development, improve business opportunities and attract residents.

It includes the creation of a significant regional playground as part of a major renewal of the parklands and streetscapes near the Gosford waterfront, aligned with the Government Architect recommendations to make the parklands a destination for visitors and the community.

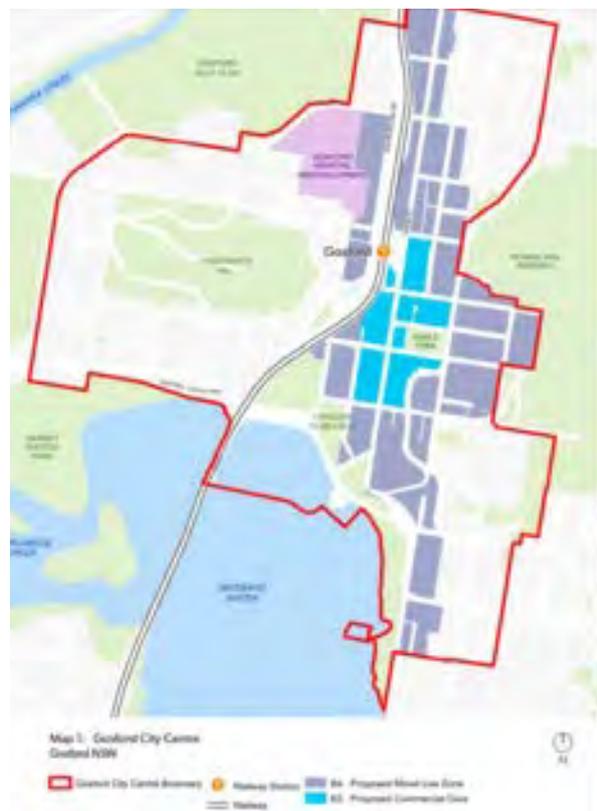

City of Gosford Design Advisory Panel

Also unveiled in 2018 is the City of Gosford Design Advisory Panel, a body that brings together high calibre planning and design minds to assess, advise and ensure design excellence of proposed developments in Gosford City Centre.

The Panel comprises NSW Government Architect Peter Poulet, Coordinator General for the Central Coast Lee Shearer, NSW Chief Planner Gary White and two additional panel members that will be drawn from an established group of expert practitioners.

With the influx of more businesses, workers and residents into Gosford City Centre, the provision of adequate carparking is becoming a key issue.

Overall, the big focus and continuing investment in Gosford City Centre is opening up a raft of business opportunities in the region’s hub to provide local jobs.

Population

The Central Coast population at the time of the 2016 Census was 327,736. This compares with 312,186 in 2011 an increase of 5.0% over the 5 years.

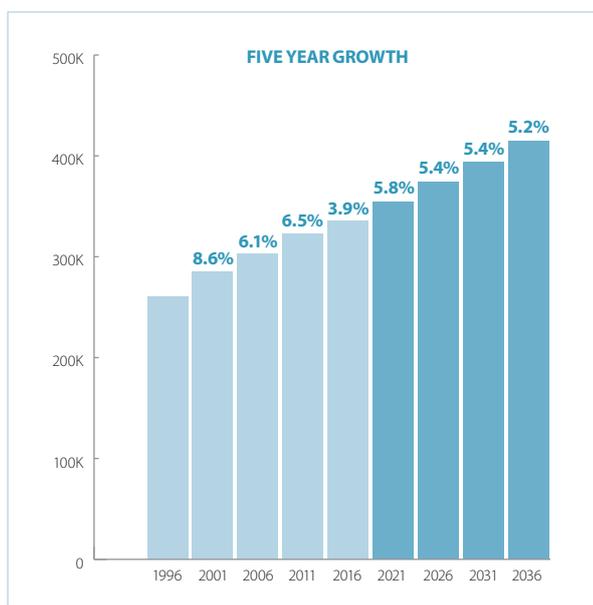

More than 95% of the region’s population lives between the coastal foreshore and the M1 Pacific Motorway that divides the coastal area from the hinterland.

The region is at the centre of the State’s fastest growing corridor from the northern edge of the Sydney Metropolitan area to Newcastle. The projected population along this corridor is estimated to be 1.1 million by 2036.

After a long period of high growth through the 80’s to the mid- 90’s where growth had been running at around 4.0% per year population growth dropped back to 0.91% per year from 2001 to 2006.

The NSW Government’s Central Coast Growth Plan 2036 is aiming at a modest 75,000 over the next 20 years or 3,775 people per year.

Property agents are reporting increased buyer activity from Sydney industrial and logistics companies seeing opportunities to relocate to the region.

TUGGERAH BUSINESS PARK

Tuggerah Business Park is regarded as the region's premier business location.

The Campus has faster than NBN fibre internet connectivity and provides an integrated ecosystem that includes childcare, food outlets, car wash, service station, storage and premium office space.

Nexus - The centrepiece of this Campus is Nexus, a next generation work space that combines the best of serviced offices and co-working facilities.

Nexus is co-located with an onsite data centre that provides redundancy and the fastest fibre internet connection on the Central Coast.

Woolworths Distribution Centre at Warnervale

In addition, Servers Australia, one of Australia's leaders in the provision of dedicated server solutions and one of the largest private networks in Australia spanning eight locations around the country, has located its head office adjacent to Nexus in a dedicated building within the Golflinks Commercial Campus with the move taking place in late 2018.

CHARMHAVEN INDUSTRIAL ESTATE is off the Pacific Highway and close to Lake Haven Shopping Centre, this estate features factory warehousing and showroom style units, catering for small business and bulky goods retail.

Nexus Complex at Golflinks Commercial Campus

Located midway between Sydney and Newcastle, the Central Coast has the advantage of being centrally located within about 2 hours driving time of a population of around 5.5 million people. Both cities provide a springboard to all Australian state capitals and the international market.

The M1 Pacific Motorway runs north-south through the Central Coast and is part of the AusLink road corridor that links the major eastern seaboard cities and towns from Sydney to Brisbane. Key industrial areas are located adjacent to the three access points to the region, at Somersby, Tuggerah and Warnervale.

In addition, the Central Coast is half way between Brisbane and Melbourne, around 950 kms (see Table), which is approximately 10 to 11 hours truck driving time putting it within the legal driving limit of twelve hours.

Port Botany and Sydney Airport is about 100 kilometres or 90 minutes' drive depending on traffic to Tuggerah on the M1 Pacific Motorway exit.

NorthConnex a nine kilometre tunnel that will link the M1 Pacific Motorway at Wahroonga to the Hills M2 Motorway at West Pennant Hills, is expected to be completed in late 2019. It will substantially reduce traffic congestion on Pennant Hills Road resulting in shorter travelling times between the Central Coast and Western Sydney.

Distribution logistics is a major factor when deciding where to site a new warehouse. The new facility must be located in the correct location to efficiently meet clients and customers delivery requirements. Consideration also has to be given to the labour catchments and road access in the possible areas.

The Central Coast is one of the very few locations in Australia providing optimum cost benefits in terms of market access and distribution due to its proximity to two of the state's largest markets – Sydney and Newcastle.

In addition the region boasts an extensive pool of labour skilled in all aspects of the warehousing and distribution process.

Lower occupancy costs, relative to city locations, are achievable due to reasonably priced land and building costs.

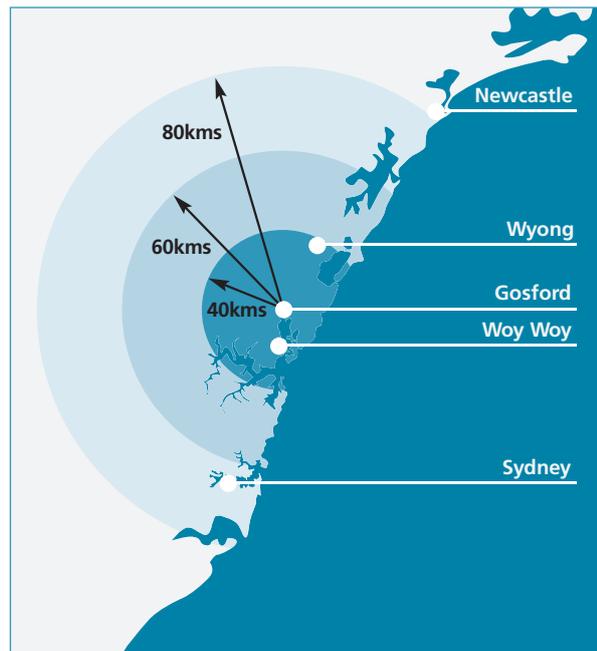

Many companies, both global and national, are seeing the logistics advantages of locating their warehousing and distribution facilities in the region.

National and global companies that have based their distribution operations on the Central Coast include:

- Scholastic Australia's head office and warehouse complex at Lisarow,
- Allen & Unwin and Hodder Headline Australia Pty Ltd operate a national book distribution centre at Tuggerah Business Park,
- Belkin Australia, global manufacturer of IT peripherals, has its national distribution centre at Tuggerah Business Park
- Pure Fishing Australia – national distribution centre,
- Garden City Products, Somersby
- Woolworths Limited operate a $100 million Distribution Centre at Warnervale.

Interstate carriers Star Track Express and Toll IPEC operate modern terminals in the region and offer overnight services to Melbourne and Brisbane.

We moved the office and warehouse to the Central Coast 10 years ago from a city location and service all our customers in Australia/New Zealand. Our warehouse receives containers from Botany only a couple hours after they clear customs.

We attend meetings, trade shows and functions in Sydney frequently, as the drive from the Erina office is comparable to driving from other parts of Sydney, and in many instances faster.

Our location here has all the modern facilities, multiple daily freight pickup & deliveries, banking, postal & other services on our block, lots of nearby restaurants and other conveniences, and staff all enjoy a short travel to work that Sydneysiders only dream about. Real Estate is more than competitive with Sydney, so too quality schooling, and all the same mainstream shopping as any capital city.

We're really just another Sydney suburb - with advantages not found elsewhere. We're very satisfied. Moving here was one of our best business decisions.

Infrastructure and utilities

The Central Coast has a well developed electricity, gas and telecommunications network to all areas of the region, along with a high quality water supply and sewerage system. The region's road and rail network ensures fast and efficient access to major cities throughout the eastern seaboard.

Water supply

The Central Coast Council owns and manages its own water supply system, the third largest urban water supply system in NSW.

Dams are located at Mangrove Creek, Mooney Mooney and Mardi with a total storage capacity of 202 megalitres supplying the entire region with its water needs.

While Mangrove Creek dam is predominantly a storage dam, it and Mooney Mooney and Mardi dams are supplied with water from pristine streams with sources in the surrounding mountains.

The region is connected to the Hunter Region's water supply system to the north by a pipeline thereby guaranteeing the region's water during times of drought.

Communications

The Central Coast is moving towards being a totally connected region as optical fibre services are rolled out by the NBN. Most of the region is now connected—the majority being connected with FttN services and some via FttP services. Gosford City, East Gosford and West Gosford in particular are connected with FttP services

The Nexus Smart Hub facility at Wyong offers a 100mbps fibre service which is faster than any service available through the NBN. Their internet connection utilises an adjacent Data Centre with multi-homed and multipathed fibre connections.

Energy

Electricity is available throughout the region while gas is available in most areas particularly for residential.

Industrial and commercial users should check that gas is available where they wish to locate.

Public transport

The rail line between Sydney and Newcastle is electrified and provides comfortable, fast, scheduled services throughout the region. Travelling time between Gosford and Sydney Central is 90 minutes.

Scheduled bus services link all suburbs to the major centres and rail stations. Major transport hubs are at Woy Woy, Gosford, Tuggerah and Wyong.

The Palm Beach Ferry Service operates regular services between Palm Beach (on Sydney's northern beaches) and Ettalong and Killcare.

Roads

The M1 Pacific Motorway from Sydney to Newcastle runs right through the region with exits for Gosford, Ourimbah, Tuggerah/Wyong and Warnervale/Toukley.

This Motorway is part of the Auslink road corridor between Sydney and Brisbane.

The Pacific Highway offers an alternate route through the region via Gosford, Ourimbah, Wyong and Warnervale.

A network of arterial roads link the Motorway exits with the residential, commercial and industrial areas of the Central Coast.

Central Coast Highway is the main arterial road from Kariong where it exits the M1 to The Entrance. It is one of the busiest roads in the region carrying over 28,000 vehicles per day in some parts.

NorthConnex is a nine kilometre tunnel that will link the M1 Pacific Motorway at Wahroonga to the Hills M2 Motorway at West Pennant Hills, will be completed in 2019. It will substantially reduce traffic congestion on Pennant Hills Road resulting in shorter travelling times between the Central Coast and Western Sydney.

Sewage and waste management

The Central Coast is serviced by a reticulated sewerage system to all non-rural residential, commercial and industrial areas. Central Coast Council owns and operates an independent sewerage and wastewater system across the region.

Trade waste policies are based on the 'user pays' principle with charges reflecting the quality and quantity of waste.

Two waste management facilities service the region, one servicing the north of the region at Buttonderry and the other at Woy Woy servicing the south.

Waste management company Cleanaway is contracted to provide kerbside waste collection services for general waste, recycling and green waste.

Restrictions are applied to liquid and hazardous wastes, for which alternative facilities are available in Newcastle and Sydney. A comprehensive Regional Waste Plan is in place and all Development Applications must include a waste management plan. Several private waste contractors provide services at competitive rates.

Mangrove Creek dam

The Central Coast has a population of approximately 337,765 people with a range of qualifications, skills and experience covering a wide spectrum.

Surveys of employers reveal that employee turnover rates on the Central Coast are well below the average for Sydney and other areas.

The general state of industrial relations on the Central Coast is excellent with most employers and employees taking a mature attitude to employment.

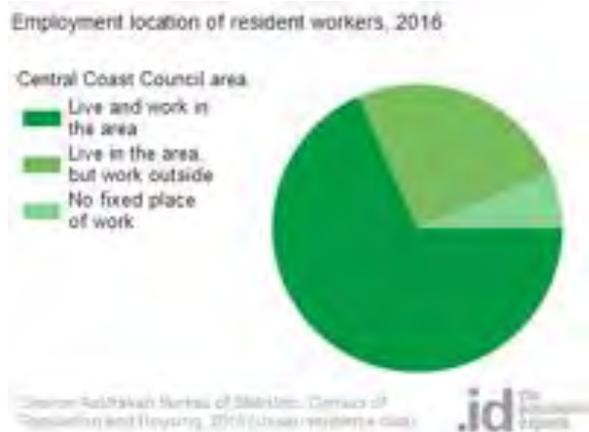

Central Coast employees normally provide their own transport, a fact that is known to contribute towards improved productivity. This mobility and more available free time beyond working hours are critical factors in reducing absenteeism.

Approximately 92% of the Central Coast population speaks English and is, therefore, entirely familiar with the language and customs.

According to Labour Force Survey data the number of Central Coast residents in work at 30 June 2016 was 139,597 while the Unemployment Rate was 6.7% (source: .id the population experts).

The number of residents who live and work on the Central Coast at 30 June 2016 was 95,389 or 68.4%.

The Central Coast had a commuting population of 35,287 in 2016 - 25.3% - most of whom would prefer to work locally given the opportunity.

Lifestyle – A better choice of living

Real Estate – Where to live

The Central Coast provides prospective home buyers a wide range of property ranging from beachfront, coastal and hinterland rural to suburban homes and apartments.

Away from the beaches affordable housing is a well-known attribute of the region.

The best part is that you can choose to be as close or as far away as you want from the shops, beaches, freeway or bush and stay within your budget.

Like most Sydney suburbs the Central Coast has experienced significant growth in values over the past several years but nowhere near those in Sydney.

The most sought after beachside suburbs are Terrigal, Avoca Beach, Forresters Beach, Toowoyn Bay and Pearl Beach, the waterside suburbs of Point Frederick, St. Hubert’s Island and Daley’s Point. Executive style properties command prices between $2 and $4 million. In the rural areas of Matcham, Holgate and Glenning Valley, Yarramalong and Dooralong Valleys prices range from $1 million to $4 million.

To the north of the region are the newer areas of Woongarah, Hamlyn Terrace and Wadalba with 450 sqm lots being offered from $310,000 to $380,000. While house and land packages are available for just less than $700,000.

Beachside locations are sought after with Terrigal the most popular location with prices starting at $600,000 and passing the $2m mark for a beachside apartment with ocean and beach views.

Schooling

The Central Coast offers residents a wide range of education options through both the Public, Catholic and Independent sectors.

Public schooling is well covered, with all residential areas served by infant, primary and strategically located high schools. An important aspect of schooling on the Central Coast is that the majority of schools have either been built or extended over the past twenty years providing students with the most modern and up-to-date education facilities.

For students attending high school on the Central Coast, there are a number of sound options to consider, from local comprehensive high schools, a selective school and several multi-campus colleges with junior and senior high schools.

Gosford High School (GHS) is a academically selective high school located adjacent to the Gosford CBD.

Central Coast Grammar School (CCGS) is a leading independent school for boys and girls from age 5 to 18 (K to Year 12) and has an enrolment of 1250 students. Located on a 17 hectare campus, its facilities include a Performing Arts Centre and extensive indoor and outdoor sports amenities.

CCGS's academic results are among the Nation's very best and its programs have a global outlook and focus on next generation teaching and learning.

For those seeking a religious based education for their children, the Catholic Church operates primary schools at ten locations throughout the region as well as St Peter's Catholic College at Tuggerah, St Joseph's Catholic College and St Edward's Christian Brothers College at East Gosford and MacKillop Catholic College at Warnervale.

Other religious schools include the Central Coast Adventist School at Erina, Green Point Christian College, Wyong Christian Community School, St Philip's Christian College at Narara and Lakes Grammar at Warnervale.
